Can I apply if I do not know any Chinese or Cantonese?

Ph.D. or M.Phil. in Communication

Understanding of Chinese or Cantonese is not essential.

M.A. in Global Communication and M.Sc. in New Media

Applications from both Chinese and non-Chinese students are welcomed. All required courses and majority of elective courses of these two programmes are taught in English. A few elective courses are taught in Cantonese or Putonghua.

M.A. in Journalism

All required courses except the Chinese News Writing and Reporting classes are taught in English, whereas elective courses are taught mostly in English or Cantonese. Students who do not understand Cantonese can complete the programme through taking the English News Writing and Reporting classes and the English-language elective courses. But understanding of spoken Cantonese would be much preferred and could broaden the choices of electives. For students who want to take the Chinese News Writing and Reporting classes, understanding of spoken Cantonese is required.

M.S.Sc. in Advertising

Understanding of Chinese in either Cantonese or Putonghua is required. Required courses of these programmes are accessible to both Cantonese and non-Cantonese speakers. There will also be enough elective classes for Cantonese and non-Cantonese speakers to choose.

M.S.Sc. in Corporate Communication

Applications from both Chinese and non-Chinese students are welcome. Understanding of English is required. Required courses of the programme are accessible to both English and Chinese speakers. There will also be enough elective courses for English and Chinese speakers to choose.

What is the difference between Research Postgraduate and Taught Postgraduate Programmes?

The CUHK's research programmes focus mainly on research work and require applicants to have sound research background. Students need to submit a thesis and pass the oral defense conducted by the Thesis Assessment Committee in order to graduate. Taught programmes, in contrast, focus on coursework. These programmes generally do not require students to submit a thesis.

Our research postgraduate programmes have more veteran professors who excel in scholarly studies, while our taught postgraduate programmes have more part-time teachers with abundant working experience in the industry. Their suitability to you depends on your interests and career goals.

\(Back to the questions / top\)

Is any course exemption allowed if I have taken an undergraduate course similar to a listed course in your programme?

Students who have taken research methods course in Social Science or related disciplines may apply for course exemption of COMM5520 Applied Communication Research or COMM5310 Statistical Analysis in Communication from the Division Head. If the application has been approved, students will be required to take another course to fulfill the unit requirement for graduation.

\(Back to the questions / top\)

Is there any studentship, scholarship or financial aids? How do I apply?

For research postgraduate programmes, full-time students will generally receive teaching assistantships or postgraduate studentships upon their admission and no separate application is required.

For taught postgraduate programmes, a small amount of academic merit scholarship will be given to students in the 2nd semester with outstanding academic performance. No separate application is required.

\(Back to the questions / top\)

Are all successful applicants guaranteed a room to live on campus?

For research postgraduate students, on-campus postgraduate halls are available. Applications for accommodation submitted before the deadline will generally be offered a place. Since demand may be greater than the total number of hostel places, accommodation is considered on a yearly basis and there is no guarantee of accommodation, while top priority will be given to incoming first-year students.

For taught postgraduate students, in view of the current shortage in hostel places, the University does NOT offer on-campus accommodation to these students. Non-local students of taught postgraduate programmes are responsible for making their own housing arrangements in Hong Kong.

The University has an Off-campus Housing Information Service (校外住宿資訊服務) (<http://lces.osa.cuhk.edu.hk/non-local-services/housing/off-campus/introduction/>) which will provide incoming students with advice and guidelines on rental accommodation. Our School will also introduce student forums to successful applicants for exchanging useful information. Non-local students are strongly reminded NOT to pay any deposits to any landlords before their admission to the School is confirmed.

(Back to the questions / top)

Will the programmes offer internship opportunities?

Internship experience is not a graduation requirement for our programmes. Some of our taught postgraduate programmes do arrange internships for students, but internship opportunities are not guaranteed and do not carry any credits.

Non-local students who wish to take internships or part-time on-campus employments should pay attention to the visa regulations by the Hong Kong Immigration Department and the School's regulation as announced in the orientation programme every year. Non-local students with a student visa are NOT allowed to take up any part-time off-campus employment in Hong Kong.

(Back to the questions / top)

Will any of the classes be conducted off CUHK campus?

Classes will be conducted on CUHK campus only.

(Back to the questions / top)

How many terms are there in one academic year?

There are two terms in each academic year: Term 1: September to early December; Term 2: January to April.

(Back to the questions / top)

Submitting an Application

How to submit an online application?

All applications have to be submitted via the Graduate School's website: <http://www.gs.cuhk.edu.hk>

The application fee for admission is HK$300 for each programme.

Application will start in September.

PhD applications will be considered mainly in the first round of admission and applicants must apply for the PhD programme through the Hong Kong PhD Fellowship Scheme

(HKPFS: <https://cerg1.ugc.edu.hk/hkpfs/index.html>) in this round. (deadline: 2 December 2019).

Please be careful to choose the right programme you wish to apply for. The Programme applied CANNOT be changed once an application is submitted via the online submission system of the University.

For details on online application and document upload, please refer to the instructions on the Graduate School's website.

(Back to the questions / top)

Will it help if I submit my application earlier?

Yes. The applications are processed on rolling basis starting from November. Early applications are strongly encouraged.

PhD applications will be considered mainly in the first round of admission and applicants must apply for the PhD programme through the Hong Kong PhD Fellowship Scheme

(HKPFS: <https://cerg1.ugc.edu.hk/hkpfs/index.html>) in this round. (deadline: 2 December 2019).

(Back to the questions / top)

Can I apply for more than one programmes? Will it affect my chance of success?

You are required to submit separate applications if you wish to make multiple applications for different programmes of our School. Please also note that multiple application fees should be paid.

Your chance of success will not be affected.

The School will consider any multiple applications based on the applicants' quality and their indicated priorities of interests. According to the School's policy, applicants will be given only ONE admission offer if they are eligible. Applicants are not allowed to switch to another programme once their admission offer is accepted.

(Back to the questions / top)

Do you accept e-mail applications?

No e-mail submissions will be considered. You must submit your applications and upload all supporting documents online via the University's Graduate School's website, and send the required supporting documents to the School by post before the respective application deadlines.

(Back to the questions / top)

Does it help if I send my portfolio to the School in addition to those documents submitted through the University's application system?

No. You are encouraged to upload all relevant documents to the online application system. Only the required supporting documents should be sent to the School by post before the respective application deadlines. Please refer to the Checklist for Research Postgraduate Programmes/ Taught Postgraduate Programmes.

(Back to the questions / top)

What is a research proposal, in Chinese or in English? How long should I write? (For Research Postgraduate Programmes only)

A research proposal outlining areas of interest, goals and plans has to be submitted. It should be long enough to demonstrate a good understanding of relevant theories and a feasible research plan with methodological appropriateness. The research proposal needs to be written in English.

(Back to the questions / top)

What is a personal statement, a study plan, in Chinese or in English? How long should I write? (For Taught Postgraduate Programmes only)

A statement of purpose articulating the relevance of their study plans to their career objectives and professional interests has to be submitted. The statement needs to be written in English, normally around two to three pages of text.

For personal statement and cv, please upload them to the online application system, under the section of 'Upload Supporting Documents - types of documents: certificates'.

(Back to the questions / top)

What makes my application a strong case?

Admission to our School is highly competitive. You need to have a good academic standing and meet the English proficiency requirement in order to be successful. Reference letters, work experience and motivation will also be considered. For application to research postgraduate programmes, a well-written research proposal is also essential.

\(Back to the questions / top\)

Do I need to possess a media-related degree? How many students will you take in this year?

We welcome students of all disciplines to apply, except for applicants of PhD programme who should possess a Master's degree in journalism/communication or in a related field of humanities and social science. The admission rate varies across programmes and years depending on applicants' quality for example.

\(Back to the questions / top\)

If my TOEFL or IELTS score does not meet the requirement of the programme, could I use other means to demonstrate my English proficiency? Can the CET conducted by universities in China be used to substitute TOEFL or IELTS? Can I submit the TOEFL or IELTS scores later?

We accept ONLY TOEFL or IELTS score as a proof of English proficiency for applicants without a degree from a university in Hong Kong or taken a degree programme of which the medium of instruction was English. Other means are not accepted. The TOEFL/IELTS score must be valid at the time of application and fulfilling admission offer of our programme (TOEFL/IELTS score are considered valid for two years from the test date.). All TOEFL or IELTS score report must reach our office before the application deadlines. If the original score report issued by the test centres is not yet available before the deadline, applicants may first send us a photocopy of the score report before the deadlines and submit the original score report later as soon as possible.

After Submitting an Application

When will the application results be announced?

Application results will be announced in several rounds from November 2019 to June 2020. Successful applicants will be notified in writing as soon as the selection process is completed. Applicants can login the Graduate School's "Online System for Applications for Admission to Postgraduate Programme" to check their status (via "view application result"). Applicants may consider their applications unsuccessful if they do not hear from us thereafter.

E-mail or telephone enquiries on the application status will NOT be accepted.

Frequent enquiry on individual admission cases, admission progress and results will SLOW DOWN the selection process.

\(Back to the questions / top\)

Can I change the programme I have applied for after an application is submitted online?

NO. An application cannot be changed once it is submitted online. Please submit another application if you wish to apply for more than one programme.

Separate applications and materials have to be submitted and mailed for different programmes.

How can I know whether the School has received my official transcripts, my TOEFL or IELTS score report, or my recommendation letters?

If you send your materials by courier, you may check the delivery status with the courier directly.

Due to a large number of applications we receive, enquiries regarding receipt of documents will NOT be processed. Instead, we will actively contact the applicants for any missing or further documents if necessary. In any case, your application would NOT be disqualified if document is submitted within one week after we ask you for supporting documents.

To ensure all your supporting documents are received, you are strongly encouraged to upload full set of valid materials via the University's online application system.

Will it help if I send an e-mail to Professors or teachers of the School?

In order to maintain a fair admission procedure, our teachers will NOT comment on the performance of any potential candidate. ALL e-mails in relation to application potentials sent to teachers of our School will NOT be accepted.

(Back to the questions / top)

If I apply for more than one programme, how will the School consider my applications?

After considering your application materials, the School will send you an e-mail asking for your priorities of interests only if necessary. NOT every applicant will receive this e-mail.

I got an offer from another Programme or University. What should I do?

Successful applicants will be notified in writing as soon as the selection process is completed. The School does NOT answer any enquiries about individual results. The results will NOT be announced earlier to meet individual applicant's request. Please decide yourself whether you will accept the offer from another Programme/University or not. Students cannot change his/her programme once they accepted the offer of admission.

After Application Result is Announced

If I receive the admission letter from one of the programmes, does it mean that my application(s) for other taught postgraduate programmes offered by the School is/are failed?

YES. Each applicant will receive only ONE offer for the taught postgraduate programmes from the School.

For students who have applied for the Master of Philosophy in Communication, your acceptance to a taught programme can be transferred if you are later admitted to the M.Phil. in Communication programme. However, please note that such transfer only applies to the M.Phil. in Communication programme, and does NOT apply to transfer to other taught programmes within the University or within the School.

If my classmate has received an offer but I have not, does it mean that my application is failed?

NO. There may be several rounds of selection and the process may span over several months (normally from November to June). Successful applicants will be notified in writing as soon as the selection process is completed. Applicants can check their status on the Graduate School's website. Applicants should consider their applications unsuccessful if they do not hear from us by July 2020.

Instead, frequent enquiry on individual admission cases, admission progress and results will slow down the whole selection process. E-mail or telephone enquiries on the application status will NOT be accepted.
